CASE: Strategic Support

Case: Market feasibility study

A company was preparing a proposal for a large contract on the Arabian Peninsula and required a detailed assessment of the security situation, key threats, recommended security approach and associated investments.

SRS conducted the feasibility study with consultants on the ground in close cooperation with the analysis team. The client received an in-depth analysis, detailed recommendations and cost estimates as well as scenario planning.

Case: Strategic relationship mapping

A global company had faced regulatory and political obstruction in Ukraine. The client wanted to discern the degree of political and organised criminal links to a regional competitor they had accused of disreputable activity.

Our work was based only on open sources, helped the client to improve their strategic understanding of the context and identify engagement opportunities to improve their relations in the country.

CASE: Tactical Support

Case: Country risk assessment

A high-tech manufacturer with business interests in Latin America requested SRS to provide a country risk analysis to enable them to understand the risks associated with operating in the region.

Based on experience from operating in Latin America and unique information provided by SRS regional network and local partners, the team delivered a comprehensive set of assessments, guidelines and recommendations enabling the client make accurate risk management decisions.

Case: Corporate security policy

An international company experienced exponential sales growth with significant emerging market exposure. Following a number of incidents, the company identified the need to implement a best practice policy and procedure document for corporate safety and security.

SRS provided provide the company, its employees and corporate functions with best practice policies and guidelines for operating in medium to extreme risk areas.

CASE: Operational Support

Case: Security review and plan

An international technology and services company was awarded a contract to deliver and implement advanced technology. The contract required the company to be present with key personnel on various sites over an extended period of time.

SRS supported the client with on-site security review and provided the client with management support, assessments and advice throughout the project. As a result, the client successfully executed the large and challenging project in a very difficult environment without incidents.

Case: Executive protection team

The Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of an international company operating in Eastern Europe received several personal threats from unknown sources.

SRS supported the CEO with an investigation of the underlying threats and implemented a security plan to enhance the CEO's personal security, enabling the CEO to focus on business operations. SRS also implemented improvements to the office as well as residential infrastructure.

CASE: Operational Support

Case: Readiness Review

SRS developed a risk analysis framework incl. prioritised actions for a government agency's travels, projects and operations abroad.

The risk analysis and proposed implementation plan combined both preventive activities with functions for managing crisis and incidents as well as a number of general adjustments and clarifications regarding responsibilities, travel arrangements and activities during different project or operational phases abroad.

Case: Crisis management organisation

A company operating in emerging markets identified the need to organise and staff a crisis management organisation in order to be prepared to handle a crisis or incident.

SRS provided a 3-step model to create and train both central and local crisis management teams. SRS also delivered standard templates and checklists as well as testing the crisis management teams in realistic scenarios.

CASE: Training

Case: Deployment Ready training

An international technology company was expanding its operations into new emerging markets, which exposed the company and staff to new challenges as well as significant health and safety risks. Proper preparations and training before deployment was required to ensure a successful outcome.

SRS Deployment Ready training prepared both individuals and the organisation for work in unfamiliar and difficult environments, enabling them to mitigate key risks and complete their assignment without incidents.

Case: Information security training

The executive management of a research intensive company identified a serious lack of knowledge and experience within the company concerning information security. The awareness gap exposed the company to potential loss of critical information and financial risks.

SRS initially trained the management team followed by key employees, promptly raising the level of awareness and reducing unnecessary exposure within the company.
